Report on
Harbour Grace People, Places & Culture Workshop

November 2018
Introduction

Heritage NL’s program “People, Places & Culture” is designed to assist communities to identify their cultural assets and to consider ways to protect and develop them. It is based on a recognition that heritage/cultural assets are some of the strongest elements that a community has to: define its unique character; create new economic opportunities; and enhance the quality of life for residents and instill local pride.

This report represents the output of a “People, Places & Culture” Workshop facilitated by Heritage NL in Harbour Grace in November 2018 comprising two parts: I) a cultural mapping activity that considered the community’s tangible and intangible cultural assets; and II) a session to explore opportunities for protecting, safeguarding and developing these assets.

Workshop Session I: Heritage Assets

What Participants Want from the Workshop

Workshop participants expressed that they were attending the session because they wanted to help realize the potential of Harbour Grace’s heritage, much like other communities in the province have done. A discussion was held at the start of the session around what participants hoped would come out of the workshop. Three key areas were identified by the group:

A. Inventorying our Heritage

The group identified a need to identify and catalogue what exists in the community, so there is a good record of assets. There is a sense that there is already great material out there, based on previous research, collections, and oral histories, both public and privately owned. How do we find this information and make it useful for our town? And then how do we identify themes or areas of focus (church, courthouse, family history, etc.) and undertake new research, such as oral histories, to fill in the gaps?

B. Planning for the Future of Our Heritage

The other need identified was to identify priorities and plan accordingly, and to develop a preservation strategy that will foster business and economic growth. Local people need to know how to access funding and get information about funding agencies. It was also expressed that any heritage plan must have action strategies, so that the plan will move forward.

C. Promoting our Heritage

The third key area identified was a need to create greater awareness of history and heritage both inside and outside the community, and to use that heritage to better promote the town. This awareness strategy could be in the form of promotional material or maps, and there was a discussion of new ways to use technology to present heritage and history.

In the workshop evaluations, one participant made the point that towns need animators and facilitators to help get dedicated and passionate people to put wonderful ideas into action. The Town’s development office, Heritage & Redevelopment Committee and Conception Bay Museum board have a major role to play here, with support from Heritage NL.

Workshop Session II - Priorities and Opportunities

I. What is the “Big Story” of Harbour Grace (i.e., the most compelling historical theme tying together the community’s history)?

• Early centre of commerce, industry, important institutions (e.g., churches/schools/lodges) and administration (courthouse/customs) in NL, with strong ties to the West Country of England
• Place of adventure/innovation - Peter Easton (pirates); Amelia Earhart (aviation)

II. Top Selections of Heritage Assets:

1. Heritage Sites:
   • Airfield (aviation history)
   • Heritage District and Structures
2. Pirates (Peter Easton)
3. Historic Waterfront/Marine Industries

III. Opportunities Identification (for development/celebration)

Airfield:

• Amelia Earhart 90th anniversary in 2022 - plays/music - focus on accomplishments of women
• Proper signage for the airfield
• Interpretation centre (place, building, monument, boardwalk around site)
• Pirates to Pilots Festival
• Seek to create international awareness
• Connections to Ireland: tourism link; new pot of funding for Europe; network (ENACTUS)

Heritage District & Structures:

• Ridley Hall (ruins)
  • Create awareness about the importance of this structure
  • Stabilize as a ruin
  • Develop storyboards with interpretation of site (e.g., Thomas Ridley)
• Develop tourism experiences around the site
• Create an amenity for residents

• Registered Heritage District (churches, courthouse, customs house/museum)
  • Develop storyboards/apps to tell the story of the district
  • Strengthen designation and municipal heritage bylaws
  • Public improvements: enhance sidewalks; attractive lighting
  • Small municipal subsidy for improving built heritage
  • Courthouse - identify adaptive reuse options

Waterfront/Marine Heritage:
• Compile stories of the harbour (boats that sank, battles, shipping, marine industries)
• Walkway/boardwalk around the entire harbour from Bears Cove to Feather Point, with lookout points and storyboards
• Develop inventory of land and ownership along waterfront
• Create waterfront development plan
• Promote marine industrial development and link to tourism through interpretation of past and present marine industries
• Consider opportunities for reinstating ferry service/or boat tour operation (across the harbour, to Harbour Grace Islands, Bell Island, St. John’s)
• Pirates - ship tour/pirate ship

Pirates:

• Pirate ship/tour - social enterprise
• Treasure Hunt/geocache - souvenirs
• Community-wide pirate murder mystery
• Tours of history and stories
• Annual Festival - bring back Pirate Day/Pilots to Pirates
• Pirate Black Tie Masquerade Ball
• Pirate’s Feast
• Theatre
• Music and storytelling sessions
• Storytelling festival
• App/self-guided tour
• Plaques/storyboards
• Beach boil-up
Top Priorities for Development (based on vote of group):

I. Short to mid-term Initiatives*:
   - Pirates to Pilots Festival
   - Waterfront Development Plan
   - Undertake Research and Develop Storyboards
   - Plan 90th anniversary of Amelia Earhart
   - Develop a Pirate’s Treasure Hunt/geocaching experience

   * “low hanging fruit” - relatively easy goals which are quick to do, will show success and help build collaboration and trust

II. Long Term Initiatives:
   - Harbourfront walk with storyboards/interpretation and lookouts
   - Develop interpretation of airfield
   - Develop public improvements/infrastructure within Heritage District

    long-term initiatives that will be developed in phases and have the greatest impact

Potential Barriers/Challenges to Success in Developing Heritage Assets:

   - Council needs to be on board, involved and aware of what is happening in the community
   - Negative thinking: perception of a dark cloud hanging over community (self-fulfilling prophecy)
   - Need for coordination amongst all groups - have a rep from each group on a steering committee
   - All interests need to be put on the table
   - Everyone not going in the same direction
   - Lack of communication between stakeholders and the community
   - Need engagement of government players
   - Lack of information on tools and resources for development
   - Just focusing on the community alone - need to think and work regionally
   - Lack of a plan and shared vision
   - Tendency to look for quick results
Getting Organized: Who leads? What are the roles?

Suggested Structure:

• Have representatives from all sectors

• Create a comprehensive community development plan that considers:
  • Quality of life for residents
  • Tourism
  • Economic development
  • Social and cultural development

• Form steering committee to get us to the next step that addresses:
  • Roles/stakeholders
  • A communication strategy
  • Identifies leaders/champions
  • Identifies mandate of a development group
  • Presents plan to council and community

• Who should be on steering committee:
  • Economic Development Officer - resource person
  • Town council
  • Business community
  • Marine sector
  • Heritage and Development Committee
  • Service groups and volunteer organizations
  • Advisory reps: Dept. of Tourism, Culture, Industry & Innovation, Heritage NL, Atlantic Canadian Opportunities Agency, Legendary Coasts (Destination Management Organization)
Recommendations/Observations from Heritage NL

1. The community of Harbour Grace has taken an important first step in identifying opportunities and priorities for developing its heritage resources.

2. Developing a long-term plan is an important early step to guide the overall development process. This will:
   - Help bring all players together to work towards a common goal.
   - Support long-term thinking necessary to undertake meaningful community development work.
   - Help access government funding for different phases of development.

   Considerations for a development plan include:
   - The development of heritage resources within a larger integrated community plan. This development should include areas that are complementary to heritage: marine industrial development; other community assets that have the potential for community development.
   - Maximizing community input and consultation to shape the plan and ensure community ownership and buy-in. Traditional development strategies created by consultants don’t always ensure a high level of community input, due to the time required. Perhaps a community consultation process/needs assessment could be undertaken prior to engaging consultants by working with partners such as ACOA, Heritage NL, TCII, Memorial University and regional stakeholders.

3. The development of a communication strategy should be a high and short-term priority to ensure that all stakeholders in the community are informed of the development process. Without this, there is a real risk that trust and efforts will break down. It could take the form of a regular printed or online newsletter and/or use of social media.

4. The development of the town’s historic waterfront and downtown will require an effective organization to drive it forward. Such a group will need to have a clear focus and mandate – ideally with a broad development mandate of which tourism is a part – and will have representation from key community sectors. Serious consideration should be given to establishing an independent development corporation in the community.
that has powers to acquire, develop and manage properties, although this may evolve over time. This model has worked well in communities such as Port Union and Bonavista. Its advantages include:

- A group dedicated solely to the town’s development
- A multi-year focus that is beyond the 4-year political cycle of all levels of government
- The ability to manage properties and undertake their development in situations where it may not be possible for the private sector to do so. It also allows for public-private partnerships
- An ability to access a variety of funding sources

That being said, the municipality will, ideally, be represented and have a strong liaison on such an entity. As well, key stakeholders should be represented such as: the business community, heritage community, and agencies with a mandate for social, economic and cultural development. Regional organizations and government agencies can play ex-officio, advisory roles.

5. A valuable early step will be to collect and inventory the community’s stories and tangible heritage assets that might comprise the following:

- Inventory of historic buildings and places
- An inventory of any collections of historical records or documentation that exist (publications, records held by the museum and library, oral histories)
- An oral history project that captures the knowledge of the community’s older residents
- Identification of research gaps and development and implementation of a research plan

Heritage NL and the Association of Newfoundland and Labrador Archives can assist with developing a plan to undertake this project.

6. In Heritage NL’s opinion, the initiatives that will have the biggest impact in terms of laying the groundwork for future development in the town include:

- Creating a plan for the development of the Registered Heritage District, along with other clusters of heritage buildings such as Victoria St, that considers such things as: public improvements of infrastructure; adaptive reuse plans for vacant or under-utilized buildings. An example of the latter is the Ridley Hall site, which could be developed as a ruin/interpretive site/park. Measures to stabilize the ruins should be undertaken within the next year to avoid further serious deterioration

- Creating a plan for a harbour walk that identifies a number of lookouts with interpretive nodes. It can incorporate existing trails (such as those that exist at Bears Cove and Feather Point), roadways adjacent to the harbour (Water Street in the Heritage District) and boardwalks in key areas. This will be a multi-year initiative that would, ideally, start with areas that are the easiest to develop in terms of infrastructure requirements and availability of land

- The two initiatives identified above should be closely integrated into a plan for marine industrial development. The two can be very complementary. The history of marine industries can form an important theme in interpretation. New and existing marine industries be an attraction for visitors (boat building and services), possibly in the form of economuseums. Consideration should also be given for how new marine industries and infrastructure can be developed in a way that is complementary to surrounding heritage assets and allows public access to the shoreline

- The airstrip could be greatly enhanced by better directional signage and by site interpretation that could include signboards and interpretive apps

- The key to enhancing Harbour Grace as a tourism destination is considering how its history and heritage can be developed into high quality, creative visitor experiences that could include: tours, festivals, food, the visual and performing arts, hands-on activities. Ideally, these will be packaged along with other regional attractions and visitor amenities (accommodation and food services) and will involve the local business sector

7. While a long-term plan is critical, the group should identify some short-term initiatives that will build collaboration and demonstrate to the community that positive change is possible. One of these might be the utilization of the Otterbury School House which is currently unused. In the summer of 2019 (which marks the 50th anniversary of the school’s closure) a session could be held with past attendees at the school in which they are invited to share photos and stories. Consideration might also be given to using the building as a venue for craft demonstrations, which could complement the nearby visitor information centre.
8. Community input and decision-making is critical if a perception -- held in some quarters -- that decisions are made by a few people in the community, are to be overcome. Engaging the community’s youth and new residents is very important. These groups bring fresh perspectives and skills needed by the community as it moves forward. Ultimately, Harbour Grace’s most important assets are the skills, energies, expertise and commitment of its residents.
